

Valley Breeze photo by Tom Ward

This big group from Cumberland Girl Scout Troop 131 and friends were at work Saturday along Diamond Hill Road between Lynch Park and the post office to clean up and fill several large bags of litter there. They were part of The Valley Breeze's "Yellow Bag Day," in which more than 600 big yellow bags of trash were picked up by about 70 volunteers across town. The team is made up of, front from left, Elizabeth Alberg, Victoria Lafond, Jordan Jepsen, Angelique Lafond and Valerie Rose. Rear from left are Mary Alberg, troop leader; Lindsey and Cheryl Tremblay, Megan Sikie, Carson Scioletti, Pat Rose, Dylan and Sherry Jepsen, and Lorna Lafond.

Volunteers come out for cleanup day

Led by National Junior Honor Society teacher and advisers Dave Clegg and Erika Doherty, this big group of Lincoln Middle School volunteers, above and at right, was hard at work cleaning up litter along Cobble Hill Road in Lincoln Saturday. The town's effort, led by Dave Sale, partnered with Keep America Beautiful. At right, Clegg leads a group of students in the Cobble Hill Road cleanup.

At far left, Justin DeSilva, Darlene Sisomboun, and Jodie Goodnough, from left, were busy cleaning up litter along Route 246 in Lincoln Saturday. At left, Glenn McCusker, regional sales manager for Cumberland's Green Tech Assets Co., was one of a trio of Green Tech employees taking computers for recycling from Cumberland residents Saturday. He was at Town Hall. It was all part of an effort spearheaded by Mayor Dave Iwuc as part of Saturday's townwide cleanup. A town tire cleanup comes later in the month.

*Valley Breeze photos
by Tom Ward*